

Report on “Lectures delivered by students”

Dept. Economics, Mathabhanga College

Dated: 19th March, 2019

Apart from traditional way of teaching the department of Economics thought that students would take class for making teaching- learning process more effective. It will make their character, personality and their independency. They will be more bold and interactive in their life.

When teachers like to see the extent of understanding among students, “Lectures given by students” could be a way. When students deliver lectures on a topic teachers can easily see the extent of their understanding. Teachers can correct what the students have not got right. It shows active participation of students. Department of Economics gave a platform to the students so that students get involved in their lessons. Students were motivated by that program. They enjoyed a lot. They felt pride of themselves. After the event Dr. Amit Kundu, Assistant Professor of Economics clarified what students had not got right.
